3.3.1 Extension activities are carried out in the neighborhood community, sensitizing students to social issues, for their holistic development, and impact thereof during the year.

Response:

The institution is deeply committed to holistic development and social responsibility, as evidenced by its extensive extension activities carried out in the neighborhood community. These activities, facilitated through the National Service Scheme (NSS) Cell and National Cadet Corps (NCC) serve to sensitize students to social issues, fostering their overall development while simultaneously making a positive impact on the community. The NSS and NCC Cells play an important role in designing and developing various programs which are aimed to create social awareness among students. These initiatives encompass a wide array of themes, including cleanliness, environmental awareness, biofuels, personal health (with sensitization camps on diseases such as gynecological issues, cancer, swine flu, dengue, etc.), plantation drives, blood donation camps, rallies addressing anti-corruption and anti-terrorism etc.

One of the noteworthy aspects of the institution's approach is the organization of special camps under the NSS and NCC. These camps serve as platforms for immersive community engagement, allowing students to actively participate in various activities that contribute to the betterment of society. The sustained interest and involvement of both faculty and students in these activities underscore the institution's commitment to fostering a sense of social responsibility.

Furthermore, the institution maintains a harmonious relationship with the neighborhood communities and local administration. This relationship is characterized by mutual benefits, wherein both the students and the local community derive advantages from the collaborative initiatives. This collaborative spirit ensures that extension activities are not isolated efforts but are integrated into the fabric of the institution's culture.

The institution actively promotes the participation of both students and faculty in these extension activities. Social awareness campaigns, conducted in collaboration with NSS and NCC, serve as a platform for engaging the entire academic community in meaningful initiatives.

In conclusion, the institution's commitment to community engagement and social responsibility is evident through its well-organized extension activities. The multifaceted approach, involving the NSS Cell, NCC Cell, and collaborative efforts with the local community and administration, showcases a holistic strategy for fostering student development and contributing to the betterment of society. Through these endeavors, the institution exemplifies the importance of education as a catalyst for positive change in the broader community.
